Winter Seminar Programme

Responsibilities of Directors in a changing world

Friday 26th February 2010.

Duke of Richmond Hotel, 12noon – 2 pm, includes buffet lunch

The third IoD Debate for this winter will consider the responsibilities of directors in an ever changing business world of risk and responsibility.

The GFSC has released a consultation paper on Code of Corporate Governance: <http://www.gfsc.gg/content.asp?pageID=624>

As directors we take certain responsibilities for business performance and put at risk more than just our reputation, but what are these risks and how equipped are we at managing those risks. Do the rewards justify the responsibilities? What influences are changing? Has the economic downturn brought issues into sharper focus? If so how does that effect individuals in Guernsey with either locally registered business or business interests elsewhere?

The importance of the topic is reflected in our panel line-up. We have managed to secure Carol Goodwin – author of the recently issued Guernsey Code of Corporate Governance consultation paper , to chair a panel of experts, being; Advocate Ian Kirk – Head of Commercial Department at Collas Day and a member of Carol's working party, Tim Copnell - Director of Corporate Governance at KPMG, London and Paul Meader – Chairman of the Guernsey International Business Association.

This seminar is likely to be very popular and applications for seats should be made as soon as possible.
